

WEATHER SAFETY

Patron and employee safety should never be put at risk. If a storm or other bad weather is predicted, stay alert for signs of the coming storm, such as thunder, lightning, or high winds.

The National Lightning Safety Institute recommends waiting 30 minutes after the last lightning sighting or sound of thunder before resuming activities. All patrons must vacate the facility until it is safe to reopen.

During a thunderstorm, patrons and staff must remain out of showers and locker rooms as water and metal can conduct electricity.
